** The coach (or the team manager) is appropriately the main (& often the only) communication avenue between the club and the players and their families. You must be prepared to take on the responsibility of taking on all communication with players and families. While the club will take on some communication, this generic email & Facebook traffic is often ignored and we need coaches and managers to make personal and consistent contact with players and families.

Please also answer the 3 questions on the next page.

1. Briefly describe your philosophies and values as they relate to coaching a junior sporting team.
2. Briefly describe your philosophy on managing game time for players with a variety of abilities.
